

Resources

NOMAD--(National Organization for Minority Athletic Directors)

<https://thenomadassociation.org/>

<https://thenomadassociation.org/membership-form/>

The Global Community of Women in Sports

<https://globalcommunityofwomeninsports.com/>

Rise to Win

<https://risetowin.org/>

400 years

<http://www.400yearsofinequality.org/>

We Coach

Wecoachsports.org

Game on: Women Can Coach--The Toolkit

cehd.umn.edu/tucker.center/projects/gameon-toolkit.ntml

Books

Gender and Race in Sports by Duchess Harris

Race Talk atne the Conspiracy of Silence by Dr. Derald Wing Sue

Four Hundred Souls: A Community History of African America 1619-2019 by Ibrah X. Kendi, Keisha N. Blain

How to be An Antiracist by Ibrah X. Kendi

Leveling of the Playing Field: The Story of the Syracuse 8 by David Marc (This is about the 1969-70 Syracuse football team who petitioned for racial equity).

Videos

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9iYErDBXLMw&t=3s>

Dr. Weaver remembers integrating his high school football team in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Use the movie Remember the Titans to start discussions around race. Play snippets and have students and coaches lead the discussion around race.

Random Thoughts

Dawn Staley (University of South College Head Women's Basketball coach) said, "There are conversations that we have to be able to have in our locker rooms. They have to be had. They're necessary for all of us to grow socially and culturally. White players and coaches can expose us to how they look at things, how they see the world, how they feel about things. And black players and coaches can expose them to what's happening in our world."

Shavon Jackson--Principal in Russellville, Arkansas said, "We must be willing to have a voice. Stop hiding behind 'I don't know what to say.' Speak out against injustice and stop fearing what other colleagues and friends may say. Your voice may be the voice that sparks change in your school or community."